About Pratham

WHO WE ARE

Pratham is one of India's largest and most effective not-for-profit organizations and has delivered quality education programming to 75 million children in 25 years.

Pratham's prior experience in working with children in communities and with EdTech has enabled the organization to pivot and adapt during the pandemic.

We have connected directly with families and children in 10,000+ communities; engaged with close to 100,000 youth; formed partnerships with 14 state governments and 500+ other organizations to share our digital repository.

School closures have affected all children, but those with little or no access to digital resources have been hurt more than others. There is widespread concern that learning gaps for children in these under-resourced communities will widen.

About Pratham

DIGITAL LEARNING VILLAGES

To sustain and strengthen the learning opportunities for children in the village, we need to ensure the following three pillars, held together by Pratham team members, are in place:

- Connections: The social structure and local support groups of parents, family members, teachers and community volunteers who help children learn in groups.
- Content: Meaningful, engaging, and relevant learning content and activities for children.
- Connectivity: Local connectivity in the village which can range from parent-owned basic phones or smartphones (present in all villages) to donated devices shared by groups and advanced hardware such as Raspberry Pi (present in some villages).

Pratham's Digital Learning Village will provide learning opportunities for up to 75 children by strengthening participation from families and community volunteers with support from Pratham team members and ensuring ongoing access to connectivity and engaging content.
