A trip to India made a lasting impression on Cleo Board Member Susan Patel. She was accompanying her son as part of the Youth Leaders Program. “I was very inspired by the students I met when I visited a training center,” says Susan. “I wanted to create a platform to promote Bharath’s beauty program.”

With in-person events suspended, Susan and fellow chapter supporter Dipale Patel organized “Navigating the Pandemic with Beauty, Style, and Grace,” a virtual evening of interactive sessions on mixing and matching outfits, makeup and saree draping. Attendees also learned about the life-changing impact of our vocational program.

“Our aim was for women to feel empowered and comfortable in their own skin,” says Dipale. “We were looking at creating more on video and had fewer opportunities to get dressed up and go out. This was a fun way to bring those aspects of life back.”

“I wanted to help parents create the next generation of philanthropists by teaching kids engaging lessons on financial literacy,” explains joy. “Parents want their kids to have a strong foundation and follow their own paths toward making the world a better place.”

Susan Patel & Dipale Patel

When his son participated in the 2020 Roadathon, Chicago Board Member Yev Kozachuk was immediately struck by an overwhelming sense of community, a much-needed experience during the pandemic.

Looking to keep his chapter connected, Yev, a financial advisor at Edward Jones, organized “Raising Money-Smart Kids,” a virtual webinar on instilling sound money habits at an early age.
Three years ago, AJ Munday relocated to Seattle to become Shell’s Branded Wholesale Territory Manager. Little did he know it would lead him to reconnect with an organization that had been prevalent throughout his youth.

Originally from Maryland, AJ’s family moved to Texas when he was young. There, they became involved in the burgeoning Houston chapter.

Through this early exposure to Pratham, AJ learned the importance of giving back: “It’s something I felt was lacking in my life, and I now have time for.” When an opportunity presented itself, AJ seized it.

In August of 2021, Shell launched “The Giving Pump,” a part of its Force For Good initiative, allowing motorists who fill up at specially marked Shell pumps to donate a portion of their purchase to a range of child-centric charities. Thanks to AJ’s and his customers’ efforts, Pratham was featured at more than 30 Shell stations around the Seattle area.

Many of the participating retailers were Indian-Americans who relished the chance to create opportunities for others. “My parents came here with the goal of raising their children and giving them every advantage and that’s not lost on me,” he explains. “I know that giving a child an education that they otherwise may not have had can make a world of difference. Just giving them a little bit of a nudge to go after something they want in life, that’s huge.”

Motivated by the success of the effort—which raised over $8,000 and significantly increased Pratham’s visibility in the region—AJ has set his sights even higher for 2022.

He hopes to double the number of Giving Pump stations featuring Pratham and work with his colleagues to expand into other parts of the country.

According to AJ, the impressive numbers are due to the universal appeal of Pratham’s mission. “Education is a galvanizing charitable force,” he contends. “Everybody can agree that providing a child with the opportunity to learn is one of the greatest gifts you can give.”

AJ MUNDAY

AJ learned the importance of giving through this early exposure to Pratham, which became his family’s charitable organization. After relocating to Seattle, AJ seized the opportunity to work with Pratham and help raise funds for the organization. His efforts have helped increase Pratham’s visibility and raised significant funds for child-centric charities. AJ hopes to expand his efforts and work with his colleagues to double the number of Giving Pump stations featuring Pratham in the future. His passion for education and giving back is evident in his commitment to helping children in need.
